New Seating Catalog Offers Wide Range of Products

Springfield Marine Company's mission is to satisfy the needs of its customers with quality parts, competitive prices and on-time delivery. All of the company's durable and dependable seating models are designed for fresh and salt-water. Full product line details are now available in Springfield Marine's new 2014 Marine Products seating catalog, which showcases the entire line of products, from folding fish seats, bolster sport seats and a full range of upholstered seats all the way to helm seats for large vessels. Based in Nixa, Mo., Springfield Marine also offers a variety of high quality seat-related hardware, including pedestals, swivels and slides. Familiar product lines from Springfield Marine include the KingPin, Spring-Lock, Taper-Lock, Thread-Lock and Plug-In series seating systems, among hundreds of other innovations. All of its products meet or exceed ABYC H-31 standards.

Springfield Marine has expanded into seating for commercial passenger and ferry vessels, and a new catalog for these products is also available. An entire suite of products will be offered including floor rails, aluminum supports, tube frames with upholstery, tables and accessories that include seat belts and life-vest storage.

New Pop-Up Ski Tow

Other new products include an expanded line of marine hardware, including the new Pop-Up Ski Tow or drop-in Ski Tow pylons for OEMs. The Pop-Up Ski Tow is made of high-strength aircraft aluminum, stows flush and pops up with just a twist.

In addition, table systems for use in the cabin and cockpit, or on the deck or swim platform, have been developed, as well as tables with umbrellas for pontoon boats.

Springfield Marine continues to invest in research and development to produce reliable new products. New wave mitigation systems also are being developed to expand the current line for both commercial and recreational fishing boats, including the Wave Master pneumatic dampening system.

A rich and storied history

In 1952, Garnett Carnahan started Springfield Aluminum Company, an aluminum casting foundry, which supplied his local fence company and the emerging boat market that soon followed. By the early 1980s, Carnahan and his wife, Caroline, developed their own line of products for the marine industry that transitioned the business into what is now Springfield Marine.

As the company grew and opportunities opened in Asian markets, Springfield opened its first factory in China in 1990. Later, in 2009, the company opened a 350,000-square-foot factory in Jiangsu, China. At about twice the size of the company's original plant, the new facility made it possible for Springfield Marine to boost manufacturing capacity, produce more components in-house, and increase R&D efforts.

"That type of aggressive strategic planning has made our company a trusted name among marine OEMs," said Danny Sweeney, Springfield Marine director of sales and marketing. "Today we are a global company supplying marine seating systems to leading boat builders and aftermarket distribution across the world."

Durable, comfortable seats

The Mariner Pilothouse Chair is one of the most comfortable and durable upholstered seats in the company's saltwater line. The seat's rugged construction features include an internal, powder-coated steel frame for strength and corrosion-resistance.

"We spend a lot of time and effort engineering new products to cover a broad spectrum of boats," said Sweeney. "We control every step of the production process, and we believe that our OEM clients and aftermarket customers appreciate the high-quality products we make."
